

NEW YORK. WASHINGTON. PARIS.

Julius Garfinkle & Co.F St., Cor. 13th. We Pay Particular Attention to Mail Orders.
Store Hours 8:30 A.M. to 5:30 P.M.A Sale of Suits.*Regular Prices, $45.00 to $65.00 at $27.50

Our manufacturers found themselves in December, their dull month, with short ends of materials sufficient for only one or two suits of a kind. They notified us and we bought them at a price much less than their regular worth and had them made up in our regular way. The styles are really advanced and the linings and finish are of the best, for under no circumstances will we offer goods even at a sale unless they are up to our regular standard, and jackets are interlined throughout.

We have black and all desirable colors; sizes 32 to 46. This is a most unusual sale.

Up-to-Date Massage.

Instead of using hot cloths or steam to get the face into condition for massaging the latest idea is to use water charged with electricity.

The water is applied through a sponge-like substance at the end of two tubes attached to an electric wire or battery. The instrument is so constructed that surplus moisture is carried off in one of the pipes.

The advocates of this method say there is no danger of too much relaxing of the muscles, as in the case with steam, and the heat is so regulated that there is no danger of scalding the skin, as with hot cloths.

HINTS TO Womenleaders*GOWN OF VELVET.

The charming gown above was of rosewood velvet, pleasingly combined with old lace and fur. The bib-like front of the bodice buttons over the yoke of lace, and from either side of this bib start narrow bands of fur outlining the yoke, which in the back becomes a wide sailor collar. From beneath the panel of velvet which runs from collar to hem in the back the high girde of satin starts, to end at the waist line in front with cord and tassel fastening. The button-trimmed tunic opens over an underskirt of rose chiffon, bordered with a band of velvet at the feet.

USE CREAM ON FACE TO PROTECT SKIN FROM COLD

Nourishing Cold Cream Prevents Flesh From Becoming Too Dry—Winds Dry Natural Oils.

A woman should never go out into a cold wind, if she uses powder, without putting a layer of cold cream on her face before dusting on powder, because the cream is a protection against drying cold winds. Only a little cream need be applied, and the powder should then be rubbed on slow; the grease will not show, and the powder will be carried into the pores thus forming a film that will remain on the surface unless it is driven in by rubbing.

Honey thinned with cucumber juice, the latter slightly warm when being mixed, would be more fragrant than either of these others, and, to sensitive skin, is bleaching.

Although I do not disapprove of so-called "liquid" powders—washes that are substitutes for powders—I think the dry dust is better to use in cold weather, because any liquid is more apt to be carried into the pores than powder that will remain on the surface unless it is driven in by rubbing.

If, as is not uncommon, there are rough places on the face, spots which suggest chapping, they should be lightly touched with oxide of zinc ointment. This is healing, and powder may be put on over it.

MARGARET MIXTER.

The Waist Muscles.

However successful stays may be in giving a woman the correct figure now, she must make provision for the future, for if she is stout and flesh is compressed under strong stays she later may find that the compression may cause muscles and cords to lose their natural elasticity and power to hold the weight of flesh, and should this happen a woman would rue the day when fashion changes, as it always does, and another shape is required for her gowns.

To obviate such possibility exercising a little without stays will do no harm, and perhaps may do a great deal of good, in that it will keep the body in muscular condition, and the more the muscles are able to do what is required of them the better.

It stands to reason that if they are never used, and much of the time are compressed under tight stays, they will grow flabby, and with a woman of middle age once this happens it is almost impossible to overcome.

Ten minutes given in the morning to muscular work, before putting on stays, is certainly worth trying. An excellent movement is to try to bend from the waist, going low, while keeping the knees straight. Under no circumstances are the knees to bend, for then there is no work done by the hips. Bending over front, back and sideways is limbering.

Any woman who has seen skirt dancing will understand that the beautiful posing of the dancer is done entirely from the waist line, and the flexibility of muscles there enables the dancer to be graceful, and at the same time it keeps her slender.

All so-called "kicking" of professional skirt dancers is done from the hips. Women untrained in physical culture do not begin to work the muscles and cords about their hips and waist as much as they should, and in that fact lies the cause of increasingly large figures as middle age comes on.

It is not well to try to bend from the hips while wearing long stays, as, in such a position, the stays will tend to compress the organs. Muscles must have room when they are to be exercised, and unless all restricting bands are removed they are better quiet.

Scarlet for Aero Hat.

The one note of scarlet seems to have struck startlingly many of the latest Parisian models. One vivid scarlet blouse set against the band of fur or in the center of soft swappings of velvet is a dominant feature of the new "aviation hat."

This aeroplane hat is far extending and fascinating. Like its namesake, it is an airy creation and made of soft white net, chiffon or aeroplane, its fragility of texture being pleasantly contrasted with a band of fur around the brim and another broad band around the low crown, worn ends in a flat bow in front, effectively finished with a fringe of little tails.

The rather somber black and white of the "maple hats" are all the more striking when every gown and wrap seems to be ablaze with colors.

scarlet, pink and dark blue crystals are also used.

Gold or silver or aluminum net by the yard can be used if preferred to the supple metal belting. It must be lined with a color that shows through, and harmonizes with the crystal embroidery. Roman gold satin is a good choice, and turquoise blue is another.

The girl who is looking for the materials to make such a bag wants to avoid the soft brocades of lavender, pink and blue material. These have been their day in everything. Fashion calls for colors that are bold, primary strong. The anemic tones have been shelved.

The fashion of medieval bags is growing again. They are used for the theater, for late afternoon affairs and for a dinner or dance, where one carries a car or a fresh pair of gloves, a muffler, a handkerchief and a powder puff.

They are made of pieces of fifteenth century tapestry, or old brocade, or pieces of jeweled net. The latter are the most fashionable, as they are of today's metal.

Sumptuous as they look, a girl can accomplish a good-looking one at home at small price. She can get the thin metal belting, which is sold by the yard, and run it together in strips, each strip finished in a loop top and bottom. The lower edges of the top loops are run into an inch-wide casing, through which a gold, silver, satin or metal ribbon. They must have ends at least twenty inches long, for the fashionable bag of today must swing from the elbow to the knee.

A box of colored crystals can be bought at the art department. A design can be followed with these crystals on the metal surface, or they can be lavishly spread over it in any way.

The opaque blue crystal that imitates a turquoise should stand out more dominantly than the other beads. Yellow, scattered, pink and dark blue crystals are also used.

Some years ago there came an agreeable method of making a lamp shade from magazine pictures of beautiful women. These were cut out and pasted on transparent rice paper and paneled with strips of gold bead or paper.

This was repeated at each edge of the finish. The best known of the good-looking actresses are usually chosen for these lamp shades, but if preferred one can use well-known authors. This choice is especially good for a lamp to be used on a desk or in a library.

Another way of making these shades is to cut out flower patterns from scarlet and black paper, paste them on transparent white paper, and passpartout the edges with black, and run strips of black between each two flowers.

More durable shades are made from stringing together crystal beads on thin silver wire. If one has any ingenuity at such things the beads can be used to form designs. In fact, a straight up and down effect can be chosen, each string being a different color from its neighbor. A good many white ones should be used to give a chance for the light to get through.

The little round card of heavy worsted that originated last summer in France has taken great hold. It is ideal for morning.
